Dear Mr. Albaugh,

As we have discussed, the Superior Court of Nevada County ("Court") and the local community are committed to locating the new Nevada City courthouse project ("new courthouse") on the site of the existing courthouse in downtown Nevada City. The Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC) is supportive of this commitment and is seeking Department of Finance approval of a project scope change to allow redevelopment of the existing site. Please note that final site selection is dependent on CEQA review. Based on our initial feasibility analysis, to build on the existing site will entail a reallocation of the project budget, provision of temporary court facilities, an extended project schedule, and complete demolition of the existing courthouse.

A question was raised regarding the possibility of retaining the existing building entry façade and incorporating it into the design of the new courthouse. We have reviewed this issue with SmithGroup, Inc. (the selected architect for the new courthouse), Architectural Resources Group (historic preservation consultant), and Ross Drulis Cusenberry (consulting architect). In addition, SmithGroup has consulted with Rutherford + Chekene, structural engineers.

While it may be technically possible to retain the façade, a number of factors contribute to the conclusion that it is not feasible or appropriate within the constraints of this project:

- The façade is not in a location that would accommodate the new building requirements very well. Considering the required building area and the site constraints, retaining the façade in its current location would likely result in functional compromises within the new building.

- The vertical entry façade is tightly integrated with other Art Deco elements on the front and side elevations on the building. These other elements vary in height and length, are lower than the entry façade, and wrap the façade. It does not appear that the vertical element can be successfully separated from the other Art Deco elements as there isn't a clean "break line". This will lead to a larger portion of the Art Deco façade being saved and result in greater compromises in designing the new building and in the functional planning of the Courthouse.
- The façade is well suited in a visual sense to the current location at the top of the hill and with sight lines from the downtown core. Relocation of the existing facade is undesirable due to the proportion and character of the facade. Relocating the facade would reduce it to an appliqué element that is inappropriate to a proper preservation effort and to the development of the new architecture for the larger new courthouse.
- Integrating such a strong historical element into the architecture of a new and larger building would be difficult. The historic façade would dominate the composition because of its size and it would be difficult to develop an appropriate architectural response. It forces either an historic copy of the Art Deco style or a severe contrast with an opposite material such as glass. Neither is an appropriate response due to the differences in modern construction materials and craft, the inappropriate copying of a past architectural style and the context of Nevada City. This would lead to a significant compromise in the architectural vocabulary of the building and a composition that lacks architectural clarity.
- While the façade could be relocated, the composition of the tall vertical flutes, the large expanse of glass and the narrow side walls makes it virtually impossible to move the façade without cutting it into smaller pieces. The existing façade would likely require costly bracing, structural strengthening, de-construction and storage to preserve it during the construction process.
- There are major accessibility factors to overcome if the existing façade were to be maintained as the primary entry to the new courthouse. A considerable amount of exterior ramping, changes to the entry door configuration and a lift at the interior lobby would be required. The lobby space within the existing façade is significantly undersized to accommodate the necessary queuing and security functions for the new courthouse. All of these elements would prove to be a significant compromise to the proper preservation of the façade and the proper function of the courthouse entry.
- The cost of demolition of the existing building would increase to allow for the protection of the existing façade should it remain in place. The existing façade is likely a cast-in-place reinforced concrete structure that is very stiff and brittle due to the properties and age associated with 1937 construction. The stiff and brittle factors of the façade would drive the basis of the entire new structure as the floor drift would need to be controlled to protect the older façade element. The two structures would need to be compatible in performance and therefore the new building would also have to be stiff. Steel moment frame and brace frame structures are most common today, but they are too flexible to match the stiffness properties of the older façade. A shear wall building is very stiff with good floor drift control so this would be the likely system choice. Shear wall buildings are not preferred in modern construction as they are typically inflexible due the large expanse of concrete shear walls.

- In any option, a new structure would be required to support the back of the façade.
- All of these considerations would add a considerable expense that is not in the project budget. The AOC has received clear direction that no additional funds are available for this project.

Based on these practical and economic considerations, we cannot pursue the idea of preserving the existing building façade. We will continue our efforts to determine the feasibility of the Court's and community's desire to maintain the courthouse function on the existing site, and we look forward to working with you to create a new facility for the Court and a new landmark for Nevada City.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you have further questions or concerns regarding the new courthouse project. I can be reached at 916-643-4671 or john.koster@jud.ca.gov.

Newsletter – May, 2011

Greetings, Patriots:

Second only in importance to the Continental Congress which signed the Declaration of Independence was the meeting of another convention which occurred in the same building (Independence Hall) 11 years later. In 1787, a group of men that Thomas Jefferson called, a collection of "demigods" met and produced what has been called a "miracle". The president of the convention, General George Washington, declared that the work it produced was only by the hand of God. On May 25th, 1787 the Constitutional Convention met and worked for almost four months to create a national government that would enshrine the idea that man's liberties are the gift of God and it was government's job to preserve and protect them. The president of the convention, and the members who worked through that long, hot summer, were convinced that we would only retain our rights as long as we believed in the idea we later made our nation's motto: In God We Trust!
